

ABSTRACT

an all-surface vehicle comprising a pair of large inflatable tubes mounted on a common axis with sufficient buoyancy to enable said vehicle to travel on water and having motor means for independently driving each of said tubes, together with a passenger or load carrying compartment; said motor and compartment being mounted with their center of gravity below the axis of said tubes.